August 2020

Jafra for Relief and Youth Development

The massive blast, which sent shockwaves across the city of Beirut, has caused enormous physical damage.

Jafra Foundation’s volunteers have already been working tirelessly alongside the Lebanese youth to remove debris and reopen the roads in order that people could return to their affected neighborhood. Food rations distribution was managed run by Jafra team as well in the Palestinian camps in cooperation with the World Central Kitchen.

The exceptional circumstances imposed by the COVID19 outbreak in Syrian have not prevented Jafra volunteers from initiate to make children happy and create positive atmosphere that they used to enjoy in Jafra centers. Various activities including recreational physical games were run by our volunteers in addition to gifts distribution.

Happiness in the eyes of the children was impressive.

Jafra center in South Damascus continues receiving beneficiaries into its various programs with a full consideration to the protection procedures and social distance. Activities in August included the educational program for children and youth psychosocial support and woman and youth empowerment workshops and trainings.

In preparation to returning back to schools, Jafra center in Jaramana camp held educational sessions for students in which they reviewed the main school subjects under specialist teachers' supervision.

With an impressive attendance of the beneficiaries' families and friends accompanied with original music performance, a prom was held for the participants of the creative writing course "Let's Write" and professional photography course in Bab El-Shams center in Greece.

During the party, Jafra Foundation honored the Palestinian writer and auditor Ali Mawasi and the Syrian artist Husein Al-Badran for the efforts they had offered to support the participants.

For those who are interested in the humanitarian work and willing to have the skills to join humanitarian actors and help your community in responding to emergencies, Jafra Foundation offers the opportunity to join its “NGO Management Bootcamp”.

This 8 days intensive training will introduce the participants to the basics of NGO humanitarian work, principles, standards and best practices!

The training will be carried out by Jafra Foundation in collaboration with international capacity building and training centers.
