Jafra for Relief and Youth Development

Eid moments at Jafra are always joyful memories for the children and participants. Jafra volunteers make their very best to offer the community plenty of recreational activities. Wonderful times to live, wonderful times to be remembered.

At Jafra Syria, summertime activities are at their height. However, it's important to remember the fundamentals of arithmetic, language, and writing; the summer is a fantastic opportunity for some children to catch up and return to school in September prepared as ever.

The MSME Jafra project participants completed their cycle of workshops in the Shatila and Burj el Barajneh camps. Each of them could get a form of support that was specifically picked for and devoted to their respective businesses. The participants are now prepared to prosper from their activity and, hopefully, please an increasing number of clients.

Participants in the urban rooftop Jafra project continue to work on them despite the heat. They are determined to avoid losing the lovely greenery they have spent months obtaining. Keeping an eye on their crops became a routine and a way of life for them.

The Jafra Great Ceremony Group added new members. This summer, teamwork and several rehearsals are on the agenda in order to soon be ready to perform during events and ceremonies and be proud of the efforts made together.
