Jafra for Relief and Youth Development

Children are one of the top concerns of Jafra. In order for the future adults to contribute positively to their societies, they must be educated and cared for. Several events were held in honour of that special International Day.

Jafra always made keeping the streets of the camps secure and clean a top concern. Participating in waste management initiatives promotes public awareness of the importance of maintaining a healthy living environment.

Selected volunteer students from various Lebanese universities, including the AUB, collaborate with Jafra to benefit participants in various activities like English and computer classes, as well as painting and video creating workshops.

In addition to its educational curriculum, Jafra welcomes a chosen group of young children who require additional support to continue succeeding in school. They can get assistance not only with grasping key principles but also with developing organizational skills.

Syria's winters can be particularly trying given the lack of accessible, inexpensive heating options in the country. More than 300 people found enough warm clothes thanks to the clothing initiative the Damascus Jafra Center organized, allowing them to spend the winter more comfortably.

Jafra places a high priority on prevention in terms of health. One method for keeping people healthy is through sport. Sports sessions are scheduled everywhere Jafra works, and participants can practice karate, football, yoga, gymnastics, and more.
